

Editorial to the June 2009 Edition.

Dear members,

This year saw the Society exhibition opened at the Royal Logistics Corps Museum at Deepcut. If you still intend visiting this exhibition, it will be open until the 4th July this year.

Next year's exhibition will take place in Kent. It will take on a different form, concentrating on the Anglo Zulu War but this time numerous artefacts of Zulu artwork will also be displayed. The display will include a fine collection of Zulu chiefs' necklaces, ornate sticks, bead and wired knobkerries, ornate assegais and a fine display of Zulu beadwork. This exhibition will undoubtedly be the finest ever put on public display, with over 200 new and rare items being made available for the first time public viewing, and will be well worth a visit. Full details will appear on the Society 'news' page at www.anglozuluwar.com. For members without access to the internet – please call me during the first part of 2010 and I'll give you the details. Remember, access to this important one-off exhibition will be free to members.

As ever, I am kept busy with answering queries from around the world and the Society's degree programme continues to be popular with new students enrolling from around the world.

And remember, if you find yourself in Kent, you will be welcome to visit me – just call first to make sure I will be available.

I wish you all an enjoyable summer.
